Subject: Re: seek clarification on Statusquo in Hungary.

Dear Yaakov

Menachem Schm* copied me on his email to you and your response. I went to the Toiras Emes, and after a kulonbozeti vizsga, to the Zsidgim, while I was also a student in the Seminary in 1949-51, when I left Hungary for Canada.

I knew a number of Low*, …, as I recall that the younger of two brothers went to the Zsidgim and was also, if my memory serves me, deported to the countryside with all the osztalyidegenekkel.

As it happens, my interest arose due to the fact that my wife's maternal grandfather, Zalmen Leib E, was also a statusquo shochet in Budapest (he was from Nyirkarasz) who didn't eat his own shechita. My son, who recently made aliya from Queens to Jerusalem, is interested in our yichus and he is the one whose questions I couldn't adequately answer and decided to ask Menachem.

Sorry to impose on you. Kol Tuv.

Introduction to historical linguistics

Comparing languages:
Contacts or no contacts? This is the question

- Similarity between to languages can be due to:
  - Common ancestor
    (Proto-Semitic *shalaam > Hebr. shaloom ~ Arabic salaam)
  - Language contact, areal and cultural factors
    (borrowings: Hebr. שק ~ Engl. sack; Hebr. טלוויזיה ~ Eng. television)
  - Language universals: [t] sound in both Hebrew and Dutch.
  - Language typology: 2 genders in both Hebrew and French.
  - Chance: suffix –i to derive adjective from geographic noun in both Hebrew and Hungarian: Hebr. ישראלי ~ Hung. izraeli 'Israeli'.

NB: observe conventional notations: [t], ~, example 'meaning', *, >.   12

Comparing languages:
Contacts or no contacts? That is the question.

- Comparative linguistics: genetic or typological.

- Historical linguistics (since 19th cent.): Similarity due to common ancestor. Search for genetic relations.

- Language typology (20th cent.): Language universals + some variations = language types. Similarity due to belonging to the same type. Search for universals.

- Areal linguistics (20th cent.): Similarity due to geographic closeness and language contact. E.g. Balkan Sprachbund, or Baltic languages.

Answering Why's in linguistics

Given a (linguistic) observation: why is it so?

- Because it has developed so:
  historical explanations.

- Because this is how it is encoded in the brain:
  cognitive explanations.

- Because this is how it can fulfill its (social) function(s):
  functional explanations.

  communicative

- Because this is how the child can learn it.

- By coincidence: Quite often the best answer, don't be afraid of it!

Why interested in linguistics?

- Aristotle and philosophers of language since:
  - Philosophical questions: what is meaning (of a sentence, of a word)?
  - Tool for other fields of philosophy: rhetoric, poetics, aesthetics…

- (Late antiquity and) Middle Ages (and since):
  - "Philology": tool to decipher the meaning/message of (old and/or holly) texts

- (Late 18th) and 19th century: language as a historical phenomenon

  - Historical linguistics (tool for history: history of language ≈ history of people)

- Early 20th century: language a sign; language as a social phenomenon
  - Structuralism (uncover structure of language), semiotics (study of signs)

- Since 1957 (Noam Chomsky): language as a biological phenomenon

  - Generative linguistics; the cognitive turn: information processing in the brain.

(Contemporary developments: balancing between different approaches.)   15

Two dimensions:

The Semitic languages: Ethiopian and South-Arabian languages

- Old (Epigraphic) South-Arabian languages:
  - (in Yemen) Sabean, Minaean, Qatabanian, Hadhramautic

- Ethiopian languages:
  - Ge'ez: holy tongue of the Ethiopian Coptic Church(es)
  - Modern Ethiopian Semitic languages: Amharic, Tigre, Tigrinya, and many-many others

- Modern South-Arabian languages (in Yemen & Oman)
  - Mehri, Soqotri, Shehri, Bathari, etc.

The Semitic languages: North-West Semitic

- Ugaritic: 2nd millennium BCE.

- Aramaic: 1st millennium BCE – today

  => Syriac: 1st millennium CE – (today: by Syriac churches)

- Canaanite lgs: since 2nd half of the 2nd millennium BCE

  - Tel el-Amarna glosses

  - Phoenician: 1st half of 1st millennium BCE

    => Punic: 1st millennium BCE in Western Mediterranean

  - Hebrew: 1st millennium BCE – today

  - Ammonite, Edomite, Moabite: early 1st millennium BCE

Further Semitic languages:
    Amorite (NW-Semitic?), Eblaite (East Semitic?), etc.

The Semitic languages: subgroups

A probably standard approach:

East Semitic: Akkadian (and Eblaite?)

West Semitic:

North-West Semitic:

Ugaritic, Aramaic, Canaanite

Arabic: go to NW (Central Semitic = Arabic + NW)? or go to South? or go apart? Different opinions!

South Semitic:

Modern SA, Epigraphic SA, Ethiopian

The Semitic languages: subgroups

Problem with the "family tree approach":

- Dialects and perpendicular waves of innovation in the protolanguage?

- Frequent contacts even after splitting apart?

- Theory of waves of migrations ("leaving the desert")

    1. Akkadian (cca. 3000 BCE to the East)
    2. NW: Amorite (Amurru, cca. 2200 BCE toward the East), then Ugarit and Canaanites (to the NW)
    3. Aramaic tribes (cca. 1100 BCE, to Syria)
    4. Arabs (since Roman times until today, cf. Bedouins)
    5. Southern Arabian and Ethiopian (toward the South)

Map 4. The Anatolian languages — This group probably arrived from the north-west, across the Bosporus. The family has completely died out. Best known is Hittite, from about 1700-1200 B.C. The other languages are Palaic, Luwian (both written in cuneiform), Hieroglyphic Luwian (which survived till the 8th century B.C.), and in the west, Lycian, Carian and Lydian, known from about the 5th and 4th centuries B.C. (in alphabetic writing). — Phrygian arrived much later (after 1200 B.C.) and does not belong to this family. The Mitanni, in the 15th century B.C., spoke (non-Indo-European) Hurrian, but their rulers were Indo-Aryans.
